

Let the Toys Talk

Suitable for anyone
working one to one with children to support their emotional development

Children's natural language is play

This two day training course explains and explores the Transformative Play model. It will take the participants on their own play journey as they discover the three ways in which children can use play to develop cognitively, socially and emotionally. The course will equip participants to safely and effectively deliver transformative play sessions to individual children. It is an experiential course so come prepared to play!

Participants will ideally have previously completed the five day Th.Inc.Room training, or some equivalent training that covers therapeutic approaches and early emotional development.

Bridget Sheehan is the Director of eQe, the creator of the Th.Inc.Room approach and of the Transformative Play model. She is an experienced teacher, therapist, behaviour consultant and trainer and has worked in schools for over 20 years.

"I found the course extremely valuable"

"I have gained vital knowledge and new skills which will enable me to be a better worker in the Th.Inc.Room."

"Wonderful training. I can't wait to put it into practice."
